The Sama Wellness - Membership & Care Guide

At The Sama Wellness, membership is more than access. It is a commitment to intentional living, personal evolution, and shared wellbeing.

Here's everything you need to know, thoughtfully outlined for clarity and confidence.

1. What is the 5-working-day cooling-off period?

In accordance with CaseTrust, you are entitled to a 5 working days cooling-off period from the date you sign your Membership Agreement. Within this period, you may cancel your membership by submitting a written request to us.

2. Will I receive a refund if I cancel within the cooling-off period?

Yes.

Refunds will be processed in line with CaseTrust requirements and may include:

- Applicable administrative fees permitted under regulations
- A pro-rated deduction if services were utilised during the cooling-off period.

We ensure all refunds are handled transparently and within the required timeline.

3. Can I request a refund after the cooling-off period?

Once the 5 working days cooling-off period has lapsed, membership fees are non-refundable, unless otherwise required under Singapore law.

We encourage you to review your membership carefully, our team is always here to guide you.

4. How are my prepaid membership fees safeguarded?

If your prepayment exceeds the prescribed CaseTrust threshold, your fees will be protected under an approved Fee Protection Scheme, such as:

- An Insurance Guarantee, or
- An Escrow Arrangement

Full details of the applicable scheme will be shared at the point of purchase.

5. Is it possible to pause my membership?

Yes, subject to our membership policy.

All memberships at The Sama Wellness are prepaid and valid for the agreed membership term.

Prior to your membership expires, our Wellness Concierge may reach out to guide you through renewal options

If your membership is not renewed by the expiry date, access to facilities and member privileges will simply conclude until a new membership is activated.

7. May I leave my belongings in the locker overnight?

Lockers are designed for same-day storage.

For hygiene and safety reasons, food items are not permitted to be stored in lockers at any time.

All lockers must be cleared before 10:00 PM daily.

Items left in lockers after 10:00 PM will be:
